In a nutshell, you can call DWF, DWG, DXF files as CAD files, but not the other way around. Anyway, you can call DWG files as vector files and DXF files as bitmap or raster files. Some few CAD products are capable of producing both DWG and DXF files as well. So, this is not an issue of the CAD software but more of the CAD file output options. In Autodesk Architect, you can export DWG files in both DXF and DWG format, so that it can be opened in any other DWG compatible CAD software.
