I live in a small town on the coast of Georgia. The only thing near us that allows for basic grocery shopping is a big Walmart about 30 minutes away. How can I order groceries online so that they get shipped to my house and I can pick them up? Is there a company that can do this or should I try doing this myself? A: I don't know how Walmart makes their shipping policy work, but I know that I've seen in the past that they will ship certain items from one store to another. I seem to remember seeing that from an electronics store, too. If you're willing to pay the shipping, you could try calling around the various stores for the city you live in and see if they can direct you to their stores that offer free shipping, and then see what kind of shipping options they give you. You might also want to check to see if your local grocery store offers a free shipping program, and whether you can use it for orders over $50 (or whatever they suggest) or if you can use it for smaller orders. There are always discounts to be found, but you'll have to shop around a little bit to see what their current deals are. If you don't want to pay for shipping, then you'll need to do some shopping around. It might be a bigger challenge than you expect depending on how far away the store is that can provide free shipping, but you might have some success. A: I live in a slightly bigger town than you, and have access to large internet shopping
