Enjoy! Why Won't My Data Render a PDF? - troyhunt ===== pjmlp The same thing happens in Basecamp, when you generate a project with attachment named PDF file in it, it gets listed with invalid rendering path. --- troyhunt hmmm, perhaps you could contact basecamp to get them to amend that? It wouldn't be the first time... I was recently asked to speak to an audit team of an insurance company on how to prioritize your credit card spending. As we were reviewing the company's consumer spending habits, it became evident that the company had its priorities in the wrong order. It's not that they were buying crap, but they were paying for things that weren't really necessary. I asked them to review their spending habits and see where there was room for improvement. The company, like many others, had budgeted its annual spending to allow for discretionary purchases. (I'll come back to this later) At the time of my visit, they were spending $1,000 per month on these purchases. In actuality, they spent only $750. They had taken the "Five O'clock number" too literally. I asked the team to begin by reviewing their annual budget. It became apparent that they were not spending the money that they were budgeting. They knew that they were not spending what they were budgeting, but they assumed that because Localization is the process of adapting the language, message and content of a software product or application to a specific language, region, or cultural group. Localization allows for global distribution of software. This gives the user the freedom of choosing their language, depending on the country, city and preferences. By using localization, your product becomes more marketable to customers across borders. It also allows for better communication of your product to your customers. Localization is also a major factor in the development process of software products. An accurate localization of the software lets developers code the product in the native language of the market. This ensures maximum user-friendliness and attractiveness of the product. User interface: App can be easily localized for different languages. App will list different languages available for localization. Just select one of them. App will list available values for selected language. Select value and OK. Android Localizer application will list localized values in a list. Now click on the desired value to show it. Note: this values will be the same in other languages available. Supported languages: Currently Android Localizer supports these languages: Ukrainian Russian Bulgarian Ukrainian English German Polish Features: Localization is something very important in development of Android application. As we can see Android Localizer is one of the best tool that supports many languages and there is also not much that could be done without it. Localization helps with: Making your application look good in local languages Preventing mistakes made in translation Makes sure your application is well suited for local area Improves your app's marketability Becomes more valuable to end users who may be speaking another language Enhances customer satisfaction Maintains brand image Localization of app is divided into three categories: Lang support - this will determine number of languages that your app can support. Targeting - this is defining how your app will look on local devices. Localized content - this is giving translations to all localized content. To start localization of your application just select a language and click on Start. Additional features: After starting localization you will get an overview of the localization progress. Note that this is just a small number of value pairs that have been localized at this time. Usually the whole process takes a few days. User guide and FAQ: Localizer project contains user guide and FAQ that can be found here. Author: Localizer is a project of Asura Technology.
