Renal blood flow (RBF) was determined by the microsphere technique in uninephrectomized rats with renal arterial constriction by vascular clip for unilateral renal hypertension and sham operation. The RBF in the hypertensive rats was reduced by 36.5% on the operated and contralateral kidney, and the difference between the two kidneys was significant. RBF was also determined in unilaterally nephrectomized rats on the left kidney alone. No significant difference was found between the RBFs of the uninephrectomized rats with and without a vascular clip applied on the left renal artery. Consequently, the results indicate that the reduction of RBF in the contralateral kidney with renal hypertension may be caused by the reduction of RBF in the operated kidney.# This file is part of PulseAudio. # # PulseAudio is free software; you can redistribute it and/or modify # it under the terms of the GNU Lesser General Public License as published by # the Free Software Foundation; either version 2 of the License, or # (at your option) any later version. # # PulseAudio is distributed in the hope that it will be useful, but # WITHOUT ANY WARRANTY; without even the implied warranty of # MERCHANTABILITY or FITNESS FOR A PARTICULAR PURPOSE.
